Thank you for your important correspondence.

We are committed to working with you to address the health and well-being of children and youth in Canada.

While Liberals and Conservatives continue to downplay the crises in Canada's healthcare systems, New Democrats have stood up to call for investments and changes to ensure everyone gets access to the care they need. It's going to matter who is in Ottawa fighting for you.

Throughout this campaign, New Democrats have put forward healthcare solutions aimed at making life better for regular people. We are committed to:

- A healthcare workforce strategy to fix our healthcare system, connecting every Canadian with a family doctor and primary care, retaining and bringing more nurses into the public system by improving working conditions, and ensuring internationally and US-trained healthcare professionals;
- Working with provinces and territories
- Saving doctors and patients time and money by cutting paperwork and administrative burdens, streamlining benefits and services so all Canadians gain access;
- Training and supporting more doctors, nurses, and healthcare professionals from rural and remote communities, and other underserved regions;
- Saving our healthcare system more money by ending our reliance on for-profit nursing agencies;

- Saving people money on the cost of their prescription drugs, dental care, and expanding our public system into mental health care;
- Protecting our public healthcare system from Donald Trump and privatization from those that would Americanize our healthcare;

Some want to take us down the wrong path – cuts to public service, less support for people, corporate handouts with no strings attached. New Democrats reject that approach and offer a vision for expanding our healthcare system, as the NDP always has when empowered to fight for change.

Thank you,

The NDP team
